Marieta da Silveira, a Portuguese scientist (1917-2004). She obtained her PhD in 1945 in the Center for Studies in Physics in the University of Lisbon with the thesis “Contribution to the study of the radiations of the Uranium X complex”. She also studied radioactive minerals and the effect of neutrons on yeast.